

LESSONS LEARNED

Where do you go for business advice?

CRAIG JAMES
VISTAGE/XPX BOSTON

My primary sources of business advice are members of the Exit Planning Exchange (an organization comprising trusted advisers, on whose board I serve), and fellow local Vistage peer advisory group leaders ("chairs"), one of whom I consider a mentor.

JACK DOHERTY
COLLEGE HYPE

Over the years, I have developed a strong network of business contacts, friends I can talk to anytime. I am a member of the Entrepreneurs Organization (EO) Boston, which also is a great place to bounce ideas off of each other.

PAULA HARRIS
WH CORNERSTONE INVESTMENTS

We leverage peer groups like the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, personal and business coaches, entrepreneurial friends and have attended many fabulous Tony Robbins seminars such as "Business Mastery."

FUTURE LESSON LEARNED: How do you balance work and life?

Send your 25-30 word answer to gwalsh@bizjournals.com. Be sure to include a high-resolution headshot.